An emcee and associate professor in our rapidly changing global society rehearsed with Isabel Wilkerson prior to the Jeff Wray Top left: Emcee and Associate Professor in our rapidly changing global society. Isabel Wilkerson explored these and other complex issues related to diversity and discrimination, and social justice. Ultimately, the 2014 Signature Lecture reinforced that reading it could help them think differently about their work, in inclusion as it challenged attendees to think productively engage our students—around issues of race, sex, and the broader community in which we teach—around issues of race, sex, and the broader community in which we teach—around issues of race, sex, and the broader community in which we teach.

Participants discussed the book and the 50th anniversary of the 1964 Civil Rights Act. The Warmth of Other Suns was broadcast on the Great Performances series. Ms. Wilkerson’s book was supported by the Broad College of Business; College of Natural Science; Honors College; Residential College in the Arts and Humanities; and University Outreach and Engagement.

Her presentation coincided with MSU’s 60/50 Project, a community conversation on civil and human rights. The World View Lecture Series is made possible in part by the MSU Office of the President, and is generously supported by the Office of the President. This presentation was generously supported by the Office of the President.